

Phone Call Drill

The Phone Call Drill is presented with three individual stages, each of which requires 11 rounds. The shooter will shoot the numbers to match their personal or business phone number. The drill starts with the number 1 or their country code prefix. If the country code begins with a multi-digit number, the shooter should use the first number of their country code (e.g. Australian shooters would use 6 instead of increased the round count to include 61).

Stage 1: Target is set at 5 yards. Shooter has no time limit. Any misses are an immediate disqualification of the drill. The drill must be completed with 100% accuracy.

Stage 2: Target is set at 3 yards. Shooter will begin the drill from the low-ready position. A range timer is required. Shooter must complete the drill in 15 seconds from the start signal. A miss will add one second to the final time. More than two misses are a disqualification.

Stage 3: Target is set at 3 yards. Shooter must draw from concealment or LEO duty holster. Another person will fill the shooter's first magazine with no more than 7 rounds. On the start signal from the range timer, the shooter will draw and fire until they encounter the need for an emergency reload and then complete the drill. Shooter must complete the drill in under 20 seconds. A miss will add one second to the final time. More than two misses are a disqualification.
